The Flesh Eaters,
previewed in this issue.

Our Feature Preview Article this issue concerns the horror film THE FLESH EATERS. These movie meat-eaters are famous for the fact that they'll eat most anything but when offered the TV head of Dorian Gray they turned green and said, "Don't be ridiculous — that would be too much to swallow!"

But if YOU are one of the millions of red-blooded American boys — or ghouls — who can't get his or her fill of filmonsters & terrarvisian tales; if you are one of those monster fons who is frightened only at the thought of not getting enough monster fare in the movie theaters or upon your TV set; then get set for another feast in this, one of our beast issues to date.

There's never a famine of first rate fantastic film facts, fancies & fates in your friendly-fiendly Halloween magazine, FAMOUS MONSTERS!

Pictured above is the famous wax model of the head of Dorian Gray, created by Dick Smith.

HAVE YOU A SKELETON IN YOUR CLOSET?

If the answer is yes, then you are to be congratulated for you are one of America's Monster Millions!

If (shudders — horrors! — shame) the answer is no, then you came to the right magazine — and just in time!

NO BONES about it: FAMOUS MONSTERS is just your meat if you want a Halloween treat right now!

Frankenstein, Dracula, Boris Karloff, Bella Lugosi, Lon Chaney — they haven't missed an issue yet. So if you are behind the times, get in step with America's Monster Millions and become an FM fan for — Life!

—Dr. Acula

"If your picture appears in FM, your nome'll be mud," she told me (my dear old mudder); "but she didn't tell me my face would be mud tao!" There is no truth to the rumor that this foto is from the cover of MUD Magazine.

DON'T READ THIS LETTER IF YOU CRY EASILY

Being a regular reader of FM has brought both sorrow & a loss of acceptance to me. Throughout the day I am unhappy over the fact that my life is not complete: my collection of FM lacks #3! I regret my delay in sending for the accused missing back issue, finally realizing that it was too late. Besides, my fellow students have come to recognize my hunger for FM & SM, and I am even rumored to prefer ghouls to girls (only partially true). However, if I have been led on this road to ruin as far as I believe, please continue your magnificent work, for I follow the principle that the best possible misery is misery in monsterland

DON'T READ THIS LETTER IF YOU DIE EASILY

Sit back for a minute and think of all the worthwhile & necessary things in the world and I'll bet FAMOUS MONSTERS isn't one of them. I was shocked to see this type of magazine on the stands. Most parents are happy that their children don't pick up a trashy magazine but they don't realize that FM is, in its own way, just as bad.

Let me state that horror & sci-fi pictures have played their part in the development of the motion picture industry and in entertainment. But most people like you turn out a magazine so people can gloat over the blood & gore long after it's over? And to top it off you can't even do what you do correctly, those idiotic captions, etc.

In conclusion let me ask you this. Must you have contests which encourage readers to make themselves up like monsters and write stories for "Darkest Acula" in place of FM why not read a great literary classic or current novel (isn't that pretty risky?) or a magazine or newspaper (What magazines would you recommend? Most of them seem to deal with movie gossip, public figure scandals, "true" horror stories, teenage "confessions", war, crime, vice, etc. And the last time I was in your state—New York—and picked up a paper, I was rarely so shocked in my life as at the headline & gory fotos on a sensation-stated murder story called something like "I Tore Out Her Bleeding Heart And Stomped On It!" — F.M.)

MC3

As you are reading this you are probably thinking: "Oh, we got another one of those fanatics writing us." (You are a mind reader!) Well, I say this to that: I know what I'm doing is right. I'm trying to serve the public interest. (But is the public interested?) I don't dare you to print this (at least that's a welcome change), I beg you to. Maybe some of the people reading this will wake up! (Anyone caught sleeping while reading this magazine is exiled to Transylvania!) I know I speak for a lot of people around here. (Remind me to detour Glen Cove on my next tour of fiendom.) I believe you will print this if you believe in the truth. Let there be something decent about you.

MITCHELL BOCK
Glen Cove, NY

● Well, to begin with, having published your letter, at least (by your own definition) we qualify as having something decent about us. And we believe in the truth—we just happen, contrary to you, to believe that we are serving the public interest. Correction: the public principle . . . the highest interest rate nowadays is about 5%, so you're welcome to serve 5% of the people while we aim to please the other 95%. We believe that within the 5% you are trying to serve you will also find earnest individuals who know they are doing right when they campaign to put clothes on animals: pants on poodles, shirts on cats . . . what next: "treaders" on caws? We'd agree that humanity would be improved by putting more treaders on bull's horns but would like to see movie censors permanently unemployed, think the post office should speed up the delivery of mail—not stop to read it, etc. If Merlin Jones (of Disney's new mind-reading comedy) really existed, probably someone like Mr. Bock, who in some mysterious manner "knew he was right", would want Merlin to start reading people's minds so next think you know everybody would be arrested for what they were thinking that didn't suit somebody else who just naturally knew what was best for the rest of society. The editor & publisher of FM feel that the older they grow the less they know positively what is right; they have a feeling that only one rather young can be so positive. We feel that FM is right for those to whom it appeals.

"WAY OF LIFE?" TO OUR EARS
THAT'S DEATHLESS PROSE!

FAMOUS MONSTERS has become a way of life to me. The feature on THE BRIDE OF FRANKENSTEIN was spectacular! The story, stills, behind-the-scenes account & pictures were all indescribable! It was truly a classic of the horror pictures. In some respects it is even finer than the original FRANKENSTEIN

FAMOUS MONSTER READER

Karloff's performance was touching & moving, invoking pity for the Monster—that poor lumbering confused creature scorned even by the Almighty Please—please have more on this great man Karloff while he's still around. You'll never go wrong

Monsters on the march

chaney jr. chills again! the evil of frankenstein is abroad in the land once more! hear all about it in this inter-gnashnal noose-reel!

Lon's latest

Dracula-like, he swirls a black cape about him. The stone statues of cats, perched atop the chimney stacks of an ancient spooky mansion, seem almost ready to leap off the roof at the sight of him.

Lon Chaney Jr. has returned!

His latest horror role, following THE HAUNTED PALACE.

Made in England, the name of this frightening film is:

WITCH & WARLOCK.

Interviewed on the set, Lon told a strange tale:

of a 95-year-old man, kept young by monkey glands, who's lived all his life in the jungle. He returns for a visit to his ancestral home in England, bringing with him tropical curios which he has been collecting all his life.

Including living curios.

Then a young girl turns up at the mansion. She finds Chaney unmanseonable, and flees from him. He flies after her. She runs to the roof. He pursues her. She screams in terror. The living curios bear her cry for help and break out of their confinement. At the top of the stairs they come upon Chaney and —

"And don't you believe a word of it!" said the Director. Had Lon been putting it on thick? Ac-

Stretching The Outer Limits of the human imagination is this incredible monstrosity from television's best brain-snatching series. (It regularly captures the editor's brain every week!)

cording to the director the film goes like this:

It's about a young man who returns to England, not to live in his ancestors' home but to tear it down. In the process of destroying the mansion, a 400-year-old grave is disturbed . . . and from it emerges a woman who was buried there in the middle of the 16th century for being a witch!

The witch woman, very much refreshed after a 4 century rest, is restless for action, so she joins forces with her warlock descendant Lon, who still carries on the old traditions of evil sorcery.

"A TRAGEDY. He was the most inventive actor I've ever known. He was a great scholar, an accomplished dramatic actor and a masterful comedian."— Vincent Price.

Only a few weeks before his untimely death, probably too ill to attend, he was honored at a hundred person banquet of the Count Dracula Society in Hollywood.

His last film is THE PATSY, and he has an unbilled appearance in MUSCLE BEACH PARTY.

He left a 10-year-old daughter, Catharine. He was cremated and his ashes preserved in an urn in Hollywood Memorial Park.

coming attractions

Watch out for THE HORROR OF PARTY BEACH, advertised as "fantastic! horrifying! weird! — ghoulish atomic beasts who live off human blood!" Companion feature: THE CURSE OF THE LIVING CORPSE... "a creature more terrifying than Frankenstein, more deadly than Dracula!"

Just "plain" HORROR is the title of a dubbed feature coming from Italy.

AIP will present GOLIATH AND THE ISLAND OF VAMPIRES, Poe's GOLD BUG, reissues of THE PIT & THE PENDULUM and HOUSE OF USHER, HOUSE OF TERROR (new), BLACK SABBATH, THE UNEARTHLY STRANGER, THE COLOR OUT OF SPACE, THE LAST MAN ON EARTH (Vincent Price vs. The Vampires!), Poe's MASQUE OF THE RED DEATH, THE DUNWICH HORROR... SHE... and THE GRAVESIDE STORY.

The feature film IT'S ALIVE, co-starring Peter Lorre & Elsa Lanchester, is to be the basis of a whole TV series! Also coming on terrorvision: The Addams Family (they're monsters)... The Munsters (they're monsters too: one member of the family resembles Frankenstein, another looks like Dracula, etc)... The Unknown... Prelude (the beginning of nightmares!)... and (dare you pass thru it?) The 13th Gate. And that's not all! Lovers & Madmen, from the producers of Outer Limits, promises to be "an hour-long anthology of eerie stories with unique twists"... The Invisibles, another hour-long series of ghost stories.

Thrills outdoing THE INCREDIBLE SHRINKING MAN are expected in THE FANTASTIC VOYAGE (into super-smallness). The creepy novel "Witch House" is being considered for filming. Other titles to watch for are:

CHAMBER OF HORRORS... DUNGEON OF HORROR... THE HORROR OF IT ALL... 3 FACES OF FEAR... THE APE WOMAN... THE MONSTERS... NIGHTMARE... NIGHTMARE HOUSE... THE ANNOUNCEMENT... MONSTER WITH YELLOW EYES... grim news

Dracula is turning over in his grave: Bela Lugosi's own vampire ring was stolen from the Ackermansion! Same teenager who took the ring took 20 stills from Forry's F.M. files as well.

This is not the kind of news you expect to read here, and not the kind we care to print, but it is the only space left as we go to press, so we are running this message from the editor:

"The ring and the stills were recovered by me privately without involving juvenile authorities or the police. But when, inside the same week, 3 other boys who had been invited into my home, tried to break in during my absence (set off the burglar alarm and were seen by my neighbors), I realized I would have to make stricter visiting rules. It is a great shame that a few overly curious or impulsive boys had to spoil the fun for future visitors, most of whom, I am convinced, are completely trustworthy; but from now on before anyone under 18 visits me they will have to have one of their parents or a responsible adult call and make an appointment by phone, and accompany them when they come. If you live locally, I can only see you once (many fans, once having visited me, wish to return several times a year, once a month, or even every week. It is impossible for me to work with so many visitors). If you phone long distance, I can only talk to you once."

A word from the Publisher: Remember the fable of the goose that laid the golden egg? Well, be good eggs, all of you, and don't kill the ghost that lays the ghoulden eggs — in other words, leave Forry to his work of editing this magazine for the pleasure of all, instead of taking up so much of his time for the pleasure of a few. END

THESE WERE THEIR LIVES

Formerly unknown episodes in the unearthly existences of Famous Monsters

BLOOD RELATIVES

by Alan B. Greene

round and red as a drop of blood, slowly peeps over the jagged Carpathian mountains. It bathes the snow-covered forest in pale, crimson light.

In a small clearing near the edge of the woods stands a single, ghastly figure that intently watches the moon, thru red, black-veined eyes. As the moon hides its scarred face behind a dark cloud the red eyes lower, hairy hands fall to the ground and the abominable creature lopes off to the village in search of prey — Man.

This is a werewolf, a being cursed with the dread disease lycanthrophia, doomed forever to change from a human into a horrible blend of man & wolf, whenever the full moon beams its bright rays downward.

Now he has reached the village. Slinking thru the maze of dark narrow alleys, he kills a drunkard and whets his appetite; searches oo for new prey.

Now the werewolf is outside a small hotel. A party is in progress. Entering by an open window he reaches an empty room. His keen beast-ears catch the sound of footsteps in the hall. Quickly he slips behind a screen. The door opens and in walks a lovely young girl. She moves to the open window and peers out a moment. "What a beautiful moon!" she whispers.

The werewolf steps from hiding and silently stalks the girl, eyeing her pulsing throat, hungrily. As he is about to spring she senses his presence and whirls. "Wait!" she cries. "Stop! You don't know!"

Startled by the outcry, the wolfman hesitates and his eyes widen in surprise. Before his shocked gaze the girl's soft arms are growing furry, her mouth sprouting long fangs; for, you see, she too is a werewolf!

But, please, don't feel disappointed at loss of a gory scene; these two became very close friends. That very nite they went out and as the saying goes, painted the town red — with BLOOD!

ABOUT THE AUTHOR: FIM reader Alan B. Greene is only 14, "An 8th grader and an average student," he tells us he has "been in love with anything and everything to do with monsters, fantasy and science fiction" as long as he can remember. Owner of a modest collection of scrapbooks, fotos and monstrous mementos, he has tried his hand at writing stories, poems, and making himself up; enjoys drawing and painting his favorite fiends immensely. He hopes to be an actor one day — his favorite is Vincent Price.

The Wolfman's Girlfriend — suggested by a foto from BLOOD OF DRACULA.

ARE MOVIE MONSTERS HUMAN?

As the monster pieced together from dead bodies, Christopher Lee brought a new concept of the Frankenstein creation to the screen (in color) in Warner Bros. 1957 release of Hammer's CURSE OF FRANKENSTEIN.

the 7 faces of mr. lee

DR. LAO, as we all know by now, has 7 faces. They are all to be seen in THE 7 FACES OF DR. LAO.

Christopher Lee has 7 faces, too, but they have been shown separately across a span of several years:

He's been the ferocious Frankenstein monster in THE CURSE OF FRANKENSTEIN, 1957.

The dread Count Dracula in HORROR OF DRACULA, 1958.

The crumbling creature who should have died 3000 years ago in Egypt but came stumbling back to life in THE MUMMY 1959.

And he's played a variety of other roles in VAMPIRES vs. HERCULES, HORROR HOTEL, THE MAN WHO COULD NOT DIE and in his forthcoming CATHARSIS, two parts, as both Faust & Mephistopheles!

But now we show you—the 8th face of christopher lee

Yes, the 8th face—the face of Mr. Lee not as monster, not as actor, but as person . . . human being . . . fan, even as you.

For, flatteringly, Mr. Lee has written a letter to FAMOUS MONSTERS!

We are pleased to share it with you.

From his home far away across the Atlantic Ocean in Switzerland, he writes:

"First, may I congratulate you on the consistently appealing quality of your magazine, which enjoys an enormous popularity wherever it appears. I have at times received a copy or two from friends and followers in the United States. But I fear that my collection is sadly incomplete." (Not any more, it isn't!) "However, I always enjoy reading this magazine and am naturally pleased and flattered by the amount of personal coverage I receive from time to time."

concerning karloff

"I have just received your June copy, which I found particularly enjoyable and interesting due to your first-class coverage of Boris Karloff and his career. I need hardly say that I am amongst his foremost admirers and have in a way attempted to follow in his footsteps. I hope that I shall continue to do so and if I can manage to present on the screen as much understanding and sensitivity for my roles as he has done, I shall be well content.

"As well as being a great admirer of his, I have also the privilege of his friendship and once had the good fortune to make a film with him." Mr. Lee refers to CORRIDORS OF BLOOD, finally released in America last year after about a 5 year delay from the time it was made in England. "I hope it will not be the last. I feel that your article did in a sense capture the essential kindness and sympathy of the man, and I congratulate you on it."

Christopher Lee as THE MUMMY (Universal/Hammer 1959) is crushing the life from Peter Cushing. Cushing has fired several shots into the rattling creature from ancient Egypt but the bullets have had little effect on the lethal Mr. Lee.

"It is my dearest wish to remake the great classic, THE MAN WHO LAUGHS", says Christopher Lee. Here we see Conrad Veidt in the 1928 version of the famous horror role. That's Mary Philbin with him, the girl who 3 years before dared to remove the mask from THE PHANTOM OF THE OPERA. Lee more closely resembles the late Conrad Veidt than any other actor we can think of.

"The Monster" in real life (Note genuine autograph). Compare this to the photo at right, showing Chris Lee in Hound of the Baskervilles.

Chris Lee as an oriental menace in Terror of the Tongs (Columbia 1961).

"Essentially kind and sympathetic" says Christopher Lee of his bogey-man friend Baris Korloff, seen above in characterization of electrocuted "murderer" (actually innocent) who lived to wreak vengeance on those who framed him in THE WALKING DEAD (Warners 1936).

Better than Bela? Some fans think so. Chris Lee in his role as The Thirsty Count of Transylvania in Hammer's 1958 color production of HORROR OF DRACULA (Universal release).

king of the undead

"I would like to correct you on one piece of information in your June number. On page 13 there is a photograph purporting to be me, subtitled VAMPIRES AGAINST HERCULES. I fear this is quite incorrect. I was never in a coffin at any time during this film! The producers, for reasons of their own, retitled this film, which was originally titled HERCULES AT THE CENTER OF THE EARTH. I cannot imagine why, unless it was for publicity reasons. The character I portrayed—Lico, King of Ecalia—was certainly not a vampire, rather one might say The Undead.

"I think this is just another case of inaccuracy for the sake of implausible publicity. If so, I am sorry, as the film in question could have been quite adequate, if they had really attempted to portray the classical visit of Hercules to Hades. Anyway, however clever the photo-montage may be, I assure you it is not me."

We are happy to have this opportunity to make an official correction of an innocently made mistake.

dracu-lee

Our famous correspondent concludes with the exciting news that he has made a tape recording of 2 of Bram Stoker's eerie tales, "The Judge's House" and Dracula's Guest!

"I am interested," he reveals, "in recording many other stories by Stoker . . . 'The Dunwich Horror' by Lovecraft . . . and further authors of the macabre whose works I have studied and chosen with a view to future recording on the gramophone."

We are sure this project would thrill thousands of Chris Lee fans and hope it succeeds in the near future.

THE FLESH EATERS

Splash!

Girl overboard!

It's all in fun — but only for the first few seconds.

There's a second splash as the girl's young boyfriend playfully follows her into the water, diving from their small sail boat.

But a few moments later, the boy fails to surface. Instead, a violent burst of bubbles gushes up thru the water . . . followed by a pool of thick dark liquid.

Blood!

The girl screams . . . then she too disappears beneath the surface.

Four faces are filled with fear & fascination as the prisoners on the mad professor's island see something ghastly in the sea — a horror from the ocean never before beheld by human beings.

A deadly vial containing living FLESH EATERS . . . and a death-dealing plan boiling about in the evil brain of Prof. Bartell, master of the hungering horrors in the sea so near at hand.

Only 10 seconds ago this bundle of bones was a living breathing human being. Now a stark skeleton stores sightlessly into eternity. One of the many fright-sights in THE FLESH EATERS.

flight into fear

The hurricane warnings are up . . . no sane person would fly a plane in such a menacing atmosphere . . . nevertheless, 3 people take to the air, bound for Cape Cod.

They are: Fading film star Laura Winters (Rita Morley).

Loyal secretary Jan Letterman (Barbara Wilkin).

And, desperately in need of money, the pilot, Grant Murdoch (Byron Sanders).

Grant has been suffering a bad streak of luck, and it really catches up with him kingsize now as the howling storm overtakes his frail plane. He and his passengers are forced down on a small island.

It is the Island of Peter Bartell.

Prof. Bartell (Martin Kosleck) specializes in the study of marine creatures and claims to be seeking specimens on his deserted strip of sand.

But is that the truth?

Bartell invites his accidental visitors to take refuge in his tent during the terrific storm. On the way to the tent, the women and the pilot are terrified by a gruesome sight:

A human skeleton washed up on the shore . . . one bony hand grimly gripping the remains of the bathing suit seen on the girl at the opening of the picture.

death from the depths

The professor says, "It is the skeleton of a woman. She must have been devoured by a school of sharks driven north by the tropical storm." But Grant's face is one of silent disbelief.

Later, Grant challenges Bartell. "That was no woman's skeleton!" he declares. The professor admits it, but offers an explanation so convincing that Grant is unable to call him a liar. Having got the professor to agree that the skeleton was male instead of female, Grant lets it go at that.

Meanwhile, the actress, who leans on alcohol like a crutch, wades out to the seaplane to get some of her private supply of liquor. She gets drunk by herself and then staggers back to the beach, where she passes out on the shore.

Further up the beach, at that moment, the professor has discovered a horrifying sight — hundreds of fish skeletons beings washed up from the sea. But, oddly, Bartell does not seem displeased at this normally chilling sight. Without telling the others, he heads straight for the plane.

When Bartell comes across Laura, unconscious in the sand, it seems to fit in with a plan he has in mind. He quietly unties the plane's lone mooring line and pushes the ship out to sea. Then he presses the empty line into Laura's hand and silently walks off.

the floating menace

The following morning Grant discovers the beachful of fish skeletons and excitedly points them out to Bartell, who pretends surprise and shock. "Some deadly parasite must be swarming the local waters," the professor theorizes.

THE FLESH EATERS claim another victim! Will the whole world be devoured by the incredible appetite of these terrors from the watery depths?

"I must fly to the authorities and inform them of this menace!" declares the pilot. Only then does he discover the seaplane is missing.

Grant is furious with Laura because it looks like (thanks to Bartell's plant) she drunkenly let the seaplane loose the nite before. It is only when her life is endangered that he overcomes his anger and goes to her rescue.

Her rescue from what? From the flesh eaters! Suddenly, as she lies atop a rock, the waters at its base churn and are filled with a ferocious new life form.

Several of the fiercely hungry creatures start to attack Grant's leg and Bartell is forced to gouge them off with a hunting knife.

The professor explains: "We are surrounded by some strange mutation from the sea. It will destroy anything that comes between it and its food."

Their only hope of escape lies with a supply boat — but it is not due for 48 hours.

Can they survive during those 2 danger-filled days — and deadly nites?

At this moment a weird figure appears on the horizon and eventually joins the group. He is Omar (Ray Tudor), a young mystic-beatnik, and he almost loses his life as he comes floating in toward the island on a raft . . . and the flesh eaters start coming up thru the cracks between the logs! Screaming for his life, Omar jumps from the craft and just barely makes it to the safety of the beach.

Now the mysterious island claims five prisoners. The professor draws a line in the sand at the highwater mark, beyond which the creatures cannot float, and the strangely assorted people begin a nerve-wracking wait for the rescue boat.

To escape the mounting tensions of the group, Jan & Grant slip off to another part of the island. There Grant makes an astonishing discovery: at the islands' highest point is hidden a giant solar battery!

Why?
For what does Bartell need a multi-thousand volt battery?

Skin and blood dissolve before the victim's staring eyes as he screams in horror at the sight of his own hands turning into skeleton fingers as THE FLESH EATERS gnaw down to the bare bones.

all shocks aren't electric

Suddenly, out of the shadows, Bartell appears. "The solar tower? An experimental model I'm testing for a fellow scientist," he explains. Then he makes an astonishing announcement: "I have discovered a way to destroy the flesh eaters!"

Back at the tent, Bartell demonstrates how a charge of electricity thru a battery jar filled with the floating flesh eaters will cause the creatures to sink lifelessly beneath the water. The group is overjoyed, feeling the means of escape is now at hand.

They will lay 2 large reels of wire along the shore, effecting a mass electrocution of the sea-beasts.

But Bartell remains behind, dictating notes on his experiment into a portable recorder. From time to time he glances at his watch. At last, to our horror, we realize why, as the flesh eaters slowly come back to life!

Shockingly, it is revealed that the professor never intended to kill the creatures but only stun them into seeming death . . . for some sinister purpose of his own.

murdering maniac

Suddenly there is the distant roar of a motor boat. The supply boat has arrived 2 days early! Rescue is in sight! But an ocean spray sweeps over the boat's hull and the navigator is eaten alive by the sea creatures.

Now their only hope of escape lies in electrocuting the flesh eaters. They set to work to wire the beach.

Omar & Bartell are working separately from the the others. When they take a break for a drink, Bartell secretly puts some flesh eaters in Omar's glass, disguising their presence with bubbling soda water. When Omar drinks, he dies an agonizing death as the creatures consume him from within!

Bartell records Omar's dying screams, then lashes his corpse to the raft and sets it adrift (with the tape recorder operating aboard) so that all are fooled into believing Omar is being eaten alive before their eyes.

horror after horror

Now things really begin to happen!

Laura discovers Bartell's secret — and is silenced by him with a hunting knife. He buries her in a shallow grave — from which her trembling hand emerges after he has left the scene.

In the tent, unseen (except by us), a terrifying change occurs in the flesh eaters: they grow into a cancerous slimy shape that slops from the jar, wrapping oozing tentacles around a parrot cage and consuming the squawking bird!

This is only the beginning.

A thing, a strange, unnatural thing that exists midway between LIFE and DEATH . . . BUT if you can stand to see human flesh stripped off a body before your very eyes — you must see THE FLESH EATERS.

A wet scrap of cloth, that's all that's left of a once healthy human being after THE FLESH EATERS have feasted.

THE END OF ISLE OF LOST SOULS part 2--conclusion--of what many are already calling our "most frightening FILMBOOK"!

What Has Gone Before

Edward Parker (Richard Arlen) is saved from a watery grave, when he is shipwrecked, to find himself aboard a strange ship that resembles a floating zoo. M'ling, a servant of the ship's captain, seems to bear a queer resemblance as much to a dog as a man.

When Dr. Moreau (Chas. Laughton) arrives aboard ship to pick up his cargo of wild beasts, Edward Parker becomes an unwilling passenger on the boat back to Moreau's island.

Moreau's is a mysterious island, peopled by natives who seem half human, half-animal. Wild weird cries—prolonged shrieks of agony—cut the nite like knives . . . coming from the forbidden House of Pain.

And there is a strange girl—Lota—whose looks & actions suggest her mother might have been a panther rather than a woman. (Lota is played by Kathleen Burke.)

he is turning animals into men! Forcing their evolution forward, thousands of years into the future!

But his experiments (involving painful vivisection) are not yet perfected, and the imperfect "manimals" which roam the island are the horrifying result.

Wishing to escape from his terrifying surroundings, Edward comes to realize that he is in actuality a prisoner.

Edward's fiancée, Ruth Thomas (Leila Hyams), learns the location of Moreau's island and charts assistance to take her there. She is on her way as our story takes up again, just as, in a burst of horror, Edward has suddenly discovered that Lota is not a Polynesian native, as Moreau had lied to him, but herself a product of the House of Pain—a panther woman!

"Moreau, you don't deserve to live!" Edward shouts. "Creating those things in the jungle was bad enough but to have created that girl—!"

Now follow the story to its exciting climax!

LOTA — The Panther Woman!

Chapter 14

MOREAU DEFEATED?

"Mr. Parker, you are an amazingly unscientific young man," Moreau coughs.

Edward angrily continues: "Now I'll expose you to the world for what you really are!"

Moreau suggests, "Perhaps you had better sit down," then proceeds with the explanation: "Lota is my most perfect creation. I was thinking of taking her back with me on my triumphant return to England, but first I wish to know whether she is capable of loving . . . having children—like a normal woman. She was afraid of Montgomery & myself, but then you came . . . You can see, of course, the possibilities that presented themselves—"

Almost before Moreau can finish the sentence, Edward strikes him and knocks him heavily backwards onto the floor. Edward storms out as Moreau hastily picks himself up. The diabolical doctor is now furious, snorting as angrily as a bull in the ring. He dashes out & finds Lota. Seizing her arm, he demands to know how Edward learned the truth.

Lota sadly offers a mute reply—she holds up her hands, revealing her long, talon-like nails. Moreau flings her aside, sitting down disgustedly, his head in his hands, and Montgomery enters the room.

"What is it, Moreau?" he asks.

"It's the stubborn beast flesh . . . creeping back. I may as well quit. Day by day, it creeps back."

No matter how humanized the Beast People may appear to be, their animal traits sooner or later return. The Great Moreau has feet of clay.

Chapter 15

ANOTHER CHANCE

Lota senses Moreau's depression and weeps on her creator's shoulder. Moreau suddenly notices she is crying and jumps to his feet triumphantly. He lifts her chin to Montgomery's sight. "See this?" he babbles. "She is the first of them to shed tears. She is human! I'm not beaten!" Moreau grabs the Panther Woman. "Get everything ready!"

"For what?" Montgomery inquires.

"This time I'll burn out all the animal in her!"

Lota screams, "No!"

As she writhes in her bonds, Moreau smiles evilly, and he says, "We'll keep Parker here. Time & montony will do the rest."

Chapter 16

RUTH REACHES THE ISLAND

Nearby, a rowboat lands at Moreau's island, and Ruth & Capt. Donahue climb out. They go toward the gigantic house, and along the way Ruth sees several of the manimals. One, a Pig Man, is ogling from behind the massive bushes, and he scampers away, his bulging belly bouncing. He ambles thru the jungle, warning the other manimals of the visitors.

"One like Not-Man!" he squeals. "One like . . . Lota!"

As Ruth & Donahue wander on thru the underbrush, she is startled by the strange sounds about her—like growling, laughing. Ruth follows behind as Donahue leads the way toward the house of Dr. Moreau, and nearby, the ugly Pig Man anxiously twitters & dances about. Finally, M'ling goes to the gate to investigate.

"People!" the Pig Man pipes. "People! One like Lota!"

At the same time, Montgomery is busily repairing the power unit as Moreau complains about his slowness.

THE SPIDER & THE FLIES

M'ling tells Moreau of the strangers, and Moreau goes to the barred gate to greet them. Not far away, as Ruth & Donahue are coming up the path, Ruth notices a bestial, wild-looking "native" in the weeds, watching her attentively.

"We're looking for a man named Edward Parker," Donahue says.

Moreau pulls open the gate and the two enter. Donahue compliments Moreau: "Nice place you've got here."

"It serves its purpose," Moreau grins.

Moreau stands by as one of the more ferocious & malformed manimals enters thru the open gate and slyly rushes to another part of the court. Then Moreau closes & locks the gate. As Ruth sees Edward nearby, she darts impatiently into his arms.

"I may not need Parker," Moreau whispers to Montgomery.

Moreau introduces everyone and leads the starving Donahue to the dining room while Edward and Ruth stay behind a moment. "I'll get my things and we'll be on our way," Edward says.

Meanwhile, Donahue & Moreau have passed thru the rows of cages, and Donahue inquires, "What sort of a place is this, anyway?"

"It's a sort of research station," replies Moreau. "We are engaged in bio-anthropological research."

Chapter 18

"THEY HAVE NEVER TASTED MEAT"

Elsewhere, Lota sees that her beloved Edward has another mate, and she begins to weep. Montgomery sees her and calls her to his side. She is somewhat afraid of him. "House of Pain?" she stutters fearfully.

Montgomery assures her, "No—no House of Pain. I promise that."

A short time ago they were animals!

Half human — all horror!

The Mad Genius and his Giant Flower of the Future! Imagine if a plant this huge were a flesh-eating Venus Flytrap —!

BRUTA — The Beast Man!

By this time, Edward & Ruth & the others are gathered around the dining table. Donahue is anxious to take Ruth & Edward and leave the island, and Edward is determined to depart. "We'll be going now," he tells Moreau.

"You'll have a mile to go thru my jungle," says Moreau. "But if you'd care to accept the hospitality of my house . . ."

Ruth recalls the terrifying manimals in the jungle, and a shudder runs thru her. "Perhaps it would be better," she says.

M'ling brings in the first course, setting it before Moreau & his guests, and Donahue notes there is no meat in sight.

"Doc, I see you're a vegetarian," he says.

Moreau replies, "Yes. On account of the natives—they have never tasted meat."

Chapter 19

AN UNEASY MEAL

While they are eating, they hear weird chanting in the jungle, and all look at Moreau, who informs them of its meaning. "The natives," he says. "They have a curious ceremony."

Ruth asks Edward about it but he is silent—does not want to talk about it. Ruth continues to eat. She glances up to see the same horrid manimal watching her intently thru the bars in the window. Frightened, she drops a spoon, and Edward sees that she is extremely nervous . . . terrified.

"The natives are restless tonight," Moreau intones as the manimal sprints away.

Ruth calms herself and declares it was only her imagination, and the feast continues. Afterwards Ruth, Donahue & Edward prepare for bed.

The 3 go up a flight of stairs to a corridor, where numerous cages line the walls. As they walk past the cages, Donahue looks at the snakes & spiders & carnivorous plants. He is nauseated. "Good thing I'm not a drinking man!" he mutters.

Donahue goes to his room, and Edward kisses Ruth goodnight. "I'll be just across the hall," he reminds her. "Better lock your door."

Chapter 20

EYES UNSEEN

As Ruth gets ready for bed, a shadowy creature leaps about in the jungle below her window, and she goes to the window to look out. Thru the bars she glimpses the blurred figure but convinces herself her eyes are only playing tricks on her.

She returns to the center of the room while, unseen, the manimal that had watched her so curiously ascends the stone wall, reaching the barred window.

As Ruth crawls under the bed covers, the hideous manimal stands on the window ledge, tugging heavily at the iron bars that hinder his entrance. The revolting creature stares evilly at the sleeping girl, who is entirely unaware of her loathsome admirer, and he yanks out one of the bars. He then busily roots up the other, as Ruth turns in her slumber.

In the adjoining room, Moreau has just blown out the candles, retiring for the night.

Chapter 21

RUTH IN DANGER

The manimal pushes the bars aside now, crawling into the room between them, and he starts to leap into the bed room but Ruth tosses restlessly and awakens.

As her eyes open, she sees the horrifying Beast Man, and she screams at the top of her lungs. The manimal is frightened but remains in the window.

Ruth's screams fill the house, and Montgomery rushes to the scene. Peering thru the small barred window in the door, Montgomery sees the evil Beast Man and fires his pistol at it. The shots scare it and it leaps out the window to the grass below. It swiftly scurries away into the depths of night as Edward rushes to comfort Ruth. "We're leaving!" He tells her flatly.

Chapter 22

ATTEMPTED ESCAPE

Montgomery, recalling something Moreau had said earlier, storms into his room. "You didn't have anything to do with it?" Montgomery sneers. Moreau only smiles. "Now I see what you meant when you said you wouldn't need Parker!"

"You should mind your own business, Montgomery."

"I'm thru—here & now! I've stood for a lot . . . but I won't stand for this!"

"Go ahead," Moreau laughs. "Go back to London . . . to prison."

"I'd prefer prison to this!"

Montgomery realizes Moreau did do it, and furiously dashes out once more.

By this time, Donahue, Edward & Ruth are all gathered together, awake & excited, and Montgomery goes to them & offers to aid them in escaping. He gives them the key to the gate exit, and Edward is slightly surprised, having previously thought Montgomery was on Moreau's side.

Bela Lugosi in a trial make-up considered for his role as the Leader of the Manimals. Final make-up (see cover of last issue of FM) had much more hair added to face and forehead.

"You must have a pretty good reason for helping us," Edward remarks.

"I do—I'm going with you."

Chapter 23

A MANIMAL MURDERS!

Donahue demands to leave immediately, and Montgomery cautions him to wait until they go, but the stubborn captain refuses to listen. Finally Montgomery gives in, and opens the gate for him. Donahue, thinking he can reach the ship safely, swiftly dashes out into the night with pistol in one hand and flashlight in the other.

As Donahue cautiously makes his way thru the jungle, Moreau sees him from his laboratory. He summons the most bestial manimal—the one that had broken into Ruth's room—and orders the creature to catch Donahue and put his hands about his neck.

The Beast Man, ever mindful of the Law, yet having faith in his "god"—Moreau—departs slowly, pursuing Donahue's scent.

Deep in the jungle, Donahue is astounded to find the manimal pursuing him, and the creature leaps out at him, attacking the frightened captain.

Taken almost unawares, Donahue fires his gun, but he misses, and the beastlike creature overpowers him.

The Beast Man wraps his hands tightly around Donahue's neck, and he squeezes it, as Moreau had told him to do.

Donahue drops limp, lifeless, and the Beast Man drags him by one arm to the center of a square, around which the other manimals are assembled. They all flock around the corpse, and the Sayer of the Law enters the scene. The Sayer sees the body and begins the ritual:

Chapter 24

"YOU SPILL BLOOD!"

"What is the Law?" he roars. He then answers himself: "Not to spill blood! Are we not men?"

"Are we not men?" they chant.

The Sayer points an accusing finger at the murderous manimal, charging, "You break Law—you spill blood!"

The Beast Man tries vainly to explain, and from out of the crowd a booming, harsh voice emerges:

"Law no more!"

As the argument progresses, the manimals swarm about Donahue's body in curiosity.

Meanwhile, at the house, Moreau has heard the uproar, and he remarks, "The natives . . . they're more than usually restless tonight."

The Beast Men and the Sayer examine Donahue and they sense that he is dead. They seem to be astounded by the fact that one of Moreau's kind can die.

"Man dead . . . man like him?" the Beast Man asks.

"Man like Him," the Sayer replies.

"He can die?"

The Sayer, gazing up at Moreau's house, says vengefully, "He can die!"

All together they rush to the nearby campfire, gathering torches and setting them ablaze, and they menacingly march on to the house to destroy their evil "god."

Chapter 25

"THEY COME TO KILL"

Moreau is becoming worried. Nervously he mumbles, "They're quite out of hand."

Suddenly M'ling dashes in panting, and fearfully declares, "They come to kill!"

Moreau calmly rises from the table and walks toward the gate. "Give me my whip!" he commands.

"Come inside, Moreau!" shouts Montgomery.

Moreau, his fearful whip in his hand, turns and says to Montgomery, "Lock the gates if you are afraid. I'm going to meet them."

At that moment, M'ling scurries by, and Moreau looks at the hairy manimal fondly. "M'ling—the faithful dog," he muses.

Edward then realizes the significance of M'ling's canine ears & bushy eyebrows. Montgomery, knowing that there will be trouble, tells Edward & Ruth they must leave instantly, and the 3 race out the gate.

"Leave the gate open," adds Montgomery during

The manimals revolt and menacingly march on their Master—murder in their savage hearts!

Lugosi (the monster in the middle) orders his fellow manimals to attack whip-wielding Laughton.

their flight, "—in case he wants to make a run for it."

Moreau stands before the multitude of manimals and bravely cracks his whip. As the burning irons gleam like stars in the darkness, Moreau roars in a giant voice:

"What is the Law?"

The unanimous cry is: "Law no more!"

Again Moreau screams, "What is the Law?"

"Not to spill blood!" the Beast Man shouts in answer. Turning to the Sayer, he points at Moreau. "He tell me spill blood!"

"What is the Law?"

"Law no more!"

The enraged crowd is intent upon moving forward, toward Moreau, but he temporarily hinders them with another mighty crack of his whip.

Chapter 26

WILD ANIMALS

Nearby Montgomery, Ruth & Edward are making their way thru the deep dark jungle, away from the danger reaching its climax at Moreau's courtyard. Out of the clear blue, Edward recalls something.

"Lota!" he gasps. "We can't leave her!"

Edward whirls, racing back to the house, and Montgomery follows.

Moreau, seeing his words will not calm the man- imals, decides to use the most powerful threat available—the promise of the House of Pain.

"Have you forgotten the House of Pain?" he smiles self-assuredly.

The Beast Man wail, "You made us in the House of Pain—you made us not men, but beasts!"

"Not men! Beasts!" another voice growls.

Lastly, Lugosi's sorrowful voice wails, "Beasts!"

The angry Beast Men rush forward at Moreau, who bounds hurriedly & awkwardly into the court, trying desperately to lock the gate upon the rebels but the huge tide of manimals sweeps thru the gate, pushing him back.

Chapter 27

MOREAU LOSES CONTROL

As they crash into the courtyard, hooves & paws trample the weeds, and a menagerie of satyrs and canine, feline, bovine, mammalian manimals prance, pad, waddle, hop, slink & trot ominously onward!

Wolf men!

Cat men!

Pig men!

Cow men!

Lion men!

Men that once were tigers!

Like creatures from the circus of Dr. Lao, monstrosities never before seen on Earth join the legion of the damned.

Moreau's eyes, large as Lorré's, bulge from his head like white balloons.

His heart pounds in his chest like the drums of Doomsday.

The very marrow in his bones freezes snow-cold.

His blood turns pale, thin, watery at the terrifying sight of his creatures in revolt.

Chapter 28

THE LAST OF LOTA

Edward is racing thru the wilderness, calling for Lota, and before long Lota runs from her beast-brethren toward the sound of his voice. Unexpectedly, along the way, the most bestial of Moreau's manimals attacks her, and she falls to the grass, nearly dead.

In the courtyard, the Beast Men have pursued the terrified Moreau until he has had to leap upon the stairway to his laboratory. Even there, the razor-like claws & talons of the manimals are grabbing at him and scratching his legs as he vainly tries to fight them off.

"Fools!" he shouts in a final attempt to halt them.

"This is the House of Pain!"

For a brief moment there is silence, but a plan enters the Sayer's mind, and he shouts, "The House of Pain!"

The idea immediately catches on, and the Beast Men seize the screaming Moreau, rushing him into his own laboratory—"The House of Pain."

Edward, having heard Lota's plaintive scream, hastens to her side, and she looks up at him, grasping his hand, saying her last words.

"Go back to sea," she weakly breathes.

The maddened manimals, crazy for blood, strap the struggling, screaming Moreau onto one of his own red-stained vivisection tables.

Gleefully, they crowd about him, eager to wreak vengeance on their cruel creator, the tyrant who has so frequently, so painfully mistreated them.

They lower the ray-bath dome over the writhing form of the fat god with the feet of clay.

Dr. Moreau, creator of tortured creatures, cornered like one of his experimental rats . . . doomed to die not like a man but like an animal

The ray springs to life!

Moreau shrieks for his life!

The Sayer of the Law rushes to the opposite side of the laboratory, to Moreau's instrument case. Heedless of his own skin, he shatters the glass with his bare hand. Wolfishly he snatches up sharp surgical instruments. Other hairy claws grasp scalpels, knives, tools with keen cutting edges.

Moreau's own tools of torture.

All the Beast Men descend like locusts on Moreau who, screaming out his lungs in dying agony, experiences the helpless feeling of horror of a trapped animal being carved alive.

Moreau the master, the haughty wielder of the whip, is now stripped of his humanity as hundreds of thousands of years of evolution fall away from him and he becomes a wild screaming beast, dying as millions of animals before him when at the mercy of a wild pack.

Montgomery, Edward & Ruth reach the rowboat, jump in pellmell and frantically row away from the night of horror.

Far behind, in the red-streaked darkness, the monstrous house of Dr. Moreau is outlined by fire, a wall of flame streaking skyward as far as the eye can see. Edward & Ruth start to turn round for a last look but Montgomery stops them.

"Don't look back!"

Actor Bull Montana made up as "The Missing Link" between man & ape.

This is one of the longest hidden Horrors we've ever shown you! It comes from practically 40 years out of the past — from 1925 and the prehistoric classic THE LOST WORLD.

The Lost World! A land that time forgot, a far corner of the earth that Father Time passed by. And still living there, in the company of the mighty brontosaurus, the gigantic allosaurus, the winged archeopteryx, the titanic tyrannosaurus rex . . . this beast-man, half human, half ape.

They called him "The Missing Link", this hairy horror, this shaggy man-beast, and he caused a number of screams and thrills in THE LOST WORLD. But a good glossy still of him was doubted to exist — until now.

We've revealed the faces behind the masks of Lionel Atwill in THE MYSTERY OF THE WAX MUSEUM, Claude Rains as THE PHANTOM OF THE OPERA; we've shown you THE THING FROM ANOTHER WORLD and the Martian from WAR OF THE WORLDS; now "The Missing Link" from THE LOST WORLD joins our Gallery of All-Time Greats among our exclusive Hidden Horrors!

MEXICAN CREATURES

dig those crazy Mexed up monsters from south of the border! Here's the lowdown on how below the boundries "things" are down of the U.S.A.

For some time now scores of vampires, robots, witches, mummies and many other horrors have, in our neighboring country to the south, been out to even the score with us North Americans.

However, only the most hep of horror fans have been aware of this invasion, and in this article I intend to Tell All — at least all I know — about Mexican fright and fantasy films.

Unfortunately for those far gone monster followers who would like to see every creature picture regardless of whether it's in English, Spanish, Germish or Transylvanish, most Mexican movies are shown in the USA only for Spanish-speaking audiences. Few are dubbed into English, like the Japanese monster movies, or even given English subtitles. Yet many are made and played in Mexico.

Occasionally Mexi-movies are given more general release. For example, MYSTERIES OF THE INNER TOMB (Misterios de Ultratumba) was dubbed into English and played around the country under the title BLACK PIT OF DR. M. Something in theme like Karloff's THE DEVIL COMMANDS, it concerns an attempt to learn the secret of what lies beyond the grave.

Another example is MACARIO, a classic fantasy in which the Devil, God & Death all take part in the picture as human beings.

"OK, then, both of you . . . 2 out of 3 falls." THE REVIVED MONSTER.

ADAM & EVE (Adán y Eva) was also given general release in the USA, so that it was possible for some fantasy film fans to view the mythical happenings when the world began and the Devil took the form of a serpent in the Garden of Eden.

The last place you would probably look for the fantastic in a film would be in a picture bearing the pleasant title of SANTA CLAUS but it features a demon and a lot of fantastic gadgetry and is regularly re-released every Xmas.

Visually the Mexican horror films show quite a bit of imagination. The monsters are quite as ghastly as those produced anywhere else in the world, and the settings seem to have more "atmosphere" and "character" than most low-budget beast-pix made in the United States. Another thing to consider is that with this type of film not being able to understand the dialog is not necessarily a disadvantage: it leaves a lot to your own imagination!

the undead get fed

Vampires, in Mexi-movies, are as numerous as fleas in an Abominable Snowman's Fur. Sample titles are:

THE VAMPIRE (El Vampiro).

THE VAMPIRE'S COFFIN (El Ataud del Vampiro).

THE INVASION OF THE VAMPIRES (La Invasion de los Vampiros).

THE WORLD OF THE VAMPIRES (El Mundo de los Vampiros).

And THE SAINT vs. THE VAMPIRE WOMEN (Santo Contra Las Mujeres Vampiro).

The Dracula-like role in THE VAMPIRE and its sequel THE VAMPIRE'S COFFIN is played by German Robles, which isn't pronounced the way it looks. In Spanish the letter "G" has an "H" sound, so think of the Thirsty Count as being played by Herman Robles. Robles is quite active in Mexi-monster-movies, as is Abel Salazar, who appears at the other end of the stake in THE VAMPIRE'S COFFIN. Tho Robles was destroyed in the approved Van Helsing manner in THE VAMPIRE, the job had to be done all over again in THE VAMPIRE'S COFFIN because the stake was removed by some square who hadn't been around enough vampire movies to know you can't pull up stakes without getting a bit part.

In THE WORLD OF THE VAMPIRES it seems a colony of the undead is living (?) in the spooky dark basement of an old hacienda (house). The vampires and their leader are seeking revenge on the last survivors of a family that did them dirt about a century in the past. (Talk about holding grudges!) After mucho struggles, the vampires again bite the dust.

the face in the dark

BLACK-MASKED NEUTRON (Neutron, El Enmascarado Negro) has as its title character a comic book type hero so common in our own serials. Neutron's opponent is Dr. Caronte (sometimes spelled Karonte), who with his human robots is out to obtain the formula for the neutron bomb so that he can rule the world. THE ROBOTS OF DEATH (Los Automatas de la Muerte) has the same characters and practically the same plot. In this variation Dr. Caronte uses human blood to nourish a master brain created with the brains of 3 dead scientists. The object is again to obtain the neutron bomb. NEUTRON vs. DR. CARONTE (Neutron Contra el Doctor Caronte) is another film in this series, which goes on and on like DR. MABUSE of German fame.

monster music

In THE MAN & THE MONSTER (El Hombre y El Monstruo) a pianist has sold his soul to the Devil, a theme quite common in Mexican films. In exchange for his soul, the pianist has gained the ability to play music of unearthly beauty. The catch is: when he plays, he turns into a monster!

This somewhat limits his concert appearances. To make matters worse, the music is so powerful he cannot resist playing it!

In a scene somewhat remindful of a part of FRANKENSTEIN, the pianist is drawn by the sound of a piano to a little girl practicing her lesson. He tries to help her but when he plays he loses his mind and becomes the monster . . .

which witch?

In THE WITCH'S MIRROR (El Espejo de la Bruja) an evil sorceress extracts a horrible revenge for the murder of her daughter. (Again, both witches and revenge are popular Mexican movie themes.) Using her magic, the witch tricks the murderer, her former son-in-law, into throwing a burning lamp at what he thinks is the image of his former wife. The "image" is actually his new bride, and her face and hands are horribly burned.

The scarred face alone doesn't seem to be too much of a problem: by grave-robbing and transplanting skin and hands, the woman's beauty is restored; but the witch has substituted her daughter's hands. The woman's new hands first try to strangle her husband, then stab him to death with a pair of scissors. (Shades of THE HANDS OF ORLAC!) The witch transforms the woman back to her burned state, turns into an owl and flies away. Moral: owl's well that ends well!

In THE RETURN OF THE MONSTER (El Regreso del Monstruo), a scientist makes a deal with a witch. She promises to make him the most powerful man on earth in return for a couple of little favors: 1) bring her monster son back to life and, 2) find a new and beautiful body for her. The first is no great problem for the mad scientist, and he and the witch's monster son are soon on the prowl for a suitable instant-beauty body for the witch. Their body-snatching plots are thwarted, however, by The Scarlet Fox, a colorful Mexican film hero.

more monstruos

In THE REVIVED MONSTER (El Monstruo Resucitado) a girl visits the house of a masked scientist. The house is located in a cemetery as the scientist likes to be close to his work. The girl cons the scientist into removing his mask, revealing him as a second cousin of the Phantom of the Opera. (In other words, his puss is a mess.) The heroine also manages to get some inkling of the strange experiments the doctor is working on. When the experimenter discovers the girl is just a reporter after a newspaper story, he gets rather upset. The only headlines he is interested in are the lines in the forehead of a dead body which he has managed to bring back to life. He has given his zombie a new brain in the bargain, and now sends the monster forth to kidnap the girl. The zombie obeys fairly well but will not go along with

"And how long have you had this childish delusion that you are a comic book character?" From NEUTRON VS. DR. CARONTE.

"Well, time for another nite's work." THE INVASION OF THE VAMPIRES.

harming the girl. When the scientist himself attempts to kill her, the zombie goes zots and zat's it for ze scientist.

PEPITO & THE MONSTER (Pepito y el Monstruo) is, surprisingly, just what the title indicates. A little boy has a run-in with a monster. Before the film runs out, Pepito is chased all over the place by the Bogey Man, but in the end the police arrive just in time to save him from becoming a monster mash. All this uproar never would have happened to Pepito if he'd been in school studying his English lessons good like a Mexican boy should.

PHANTOM OF THE CONVENT (El Fantasma del Convento) is a conventional ghost story. Three travelers spend the nite in an abandoned convent and become involved with several monks who are in reality long-dead mummies from the catacombs below.

It seems that once upon a time one of these monks sold his soul to the Devil . . . One of the travelers is also interested in such a devilish bargain but decides against it when he gets to thinking about the brimstone he'll get in the end.

In HELL-FACE (Rostro Infernal) a sinister Count, who conceals a monstrous face with a mask, uses his automatons to kidnap some of the world's greatest minds and talents. He is plotting to rule the world. After a big chase the Count is counted out and the heroine as well as the world are saved.

James Cagney, noted for his many movie gangster roles, might be more at home in a Hall of Fame ("I wuz framed!" he's often told the FBI film-fuzz). But he's here because of his impersonation of Lon Chaney Sr.—as The Phantom of the Opera in MAN OF A THOUSAND FACES.

THE

high hopes for hit

Once in a blue moon a monster or horror movie comes along in which a major motion picture studio places its faith; its full resources of producer, director, writer, actors and special-effects men working together 100% to create what they believe is perfection.

Then the publicity and promotion people take over and pour thousands of dollars more into the picture in an all-out effort to properly exploit what they feel is an extraordinary story.

FRANKENSTEIN, KING KONG have been outstanding examples, and Pal's own mighty adaptation of Wells' WAR OF THE WORLDS, with its never-to-be-forgotten military might from the Red Planet, and brief startling glimpse of the grotesque Martian.

Now it looks like Pal has done it again with a top-budget motion picture marvel entitled THE 7 FACES OF DR. LAO. (It's pronounced "Lo", as in lo and behold.) This new MGM effort is being promoted with all the enthusiasm given the same studio's spectacular FORBIDDEN PLANET, with its famous monster from the Id.

pre-production problems

Even before the cameras started to grind on the action at the sprawling Metro lot in Culver City, a huge investment was laid out in time and technical challenges.

Make-up chief Bill Tuttle, the man responsible for the creation of the Morlocks, those people-eating cannibal-fiends of the far future in THE TIME MACHINE, really had his work cut out for him with this one. He had to design, devise and properly fit no less than 34 masks! to be worn thruout the picture, most of them disguising the facial features of star Tony Randall.

Remembered for their Oscar-winning effects for THE TIME MACHINE, illusion experts Tim Barr and Wah Chang, whose weird work is regularly featured on The Outer Limits, made dozens of intricate effects on their drawing-boards before perfecting those used in DR. LAO, and FM's own discovery, Jim Danforth, worked on the Loch Ness monster.

Soundtrack music is aptly strange, employing many unusual instruments including the ancient many-reed Pipes of Pan.

Houdini touch

Not since he filmed the life story of the great mystifier HOUDINI has Geo. Pal used so much magic in a film. He enlisted the aid of world-famous magicians to perform the "impossible" feats shown in the film, bringing one of them all the way across the Atlantic ocean from fog-shrouded England.

Why all this trouble?

Because, according to Pal, the story merits it. "It's a fascinating tale — drama, melodrama, mys-

Flowers grow in the desert, a guinea-pig is plucked out of a popcorn bag, and all sorts of mysterious things happen with ordinary playing cards and enchanted golden balls.

And so, let us join the ancient Oriental wizard and be off to the Circus!

As you step curiously inside the many-colored 8-sided split-level circus tent, you find to your amazement that it is somehow larger inside than out!

And filled with out-of-this-world creatures!

Such as:

The Abominable Snowman — a truly frightening sight. Roughly man-shaped, with 2 arms and 2 legs, there resemblance to a human being ends. "Squwuggy" is the word to describe this monster — covered from head to toe with a ghastly growth of silver-platinum shaggy fur . . . face, devoid of hair, a repulsive pink in color . . . discolored fangs protruding from a great gaping hole of a mouth . . . altogether, a being of evil ferocity that grunts and snarls as it shambles about, balefully fixing everyone with a glare.

worse things waiting

Pan — half man, half goat . . . with enormous long furred legs, horned head, unkempt hair . . . with a "baa-aa-a" for a voice!

The Giant Serpent — a very long snake, vivid green, cool, coiled, menacingly lying in its cage . . . with a human head that talks like a man!

The Loch Ness Monster — at first it appears to be only a small harmless fish in an ordinary glass bowl. Safe as long as it's swimming about in water, but woe (or whoa!) if exposed to air: such a rapid rate of growth has never before been seen on the screen!

It's not just a fish story as, before your disbelieving eyes in a matter of minutes, it grows from fishlet to large lizard to huge dinosaur-size creature!

A water dragon!

And as the Loch Ness monster increases in size, he increases in ferocity, chasing and capturing 2 villains and dashing them to the ground far below from the dizzying height of its head.

the snake-woman

Medusa? Ah, yes! "See Medusa Turn Men of Granite into Stone!" is the billing given the grisly lady with the live snakes doing the hula-hula on her head! No hair — just snakes!

You'll see one foolhardy woman, bolder than the rest, dare to tear away the protecting curtain and come face to face with —

Medusa herself!

Terror queen of ancient legend!

And, as the modern woman gazes with shock upon the age-old horror, the eerie snake-woman with the thin cold lips of poisonous emerald green, she literally turns to stone!

All the while, the many twisting turning snakes atop Medusa's head converse in hisses among their wriggling selves in a language understood only by the serpents and the evil one whose head is their home.

Let's face it: DR. LAO (son of DR. NAO?) sounds like a lot of chills and thrills and more fun than a barrel of water-snakes!

a land that time forgot! Not even history has recorded the existence of this unknown empire of darkness! Never has man made such an expedition into terror! Never before have outsiders beheld such sights: the sacred ritual of the sun-death . . . the blazing sacrificial chambers . . . the court of the all-powerful High Priest of Ishtar! You'll tremble at the sight of the blood-lusting Mole People as they storm from their subterranean caverns — dragging their victims into their underground lairs! THE MOLE PEOPLE! Terror to shatter your nerves!"

If you were listening to your radio in 1956, words similar to these alerted you that THE MOLE PEOPLE were coming to your local theater in the near future.

"Their fury rules an empire of darkness!"

"A jolting expedition into terror!"

"The screen's most startling horror thrill!"

It is a mountainous area of mysterious Asia. Dr. Roger Bentley (John Agar) heads an expedition.

Suddenly, the ground gives way beneath the feet of Bentley and his fellow explorers. One of the men falls into a huge cavern. By the time the others can get to him, rescue is past; he is dead.

A moment later a roaring landslide seals the entrance to the cavern.

The scientists are trapped beneath the surface of the earth!

amazing discovery

In their search for another way out, the remaining 3 men discover a second cavern. It is of enormous size — and it is not empty. It contains the ruins of an ancient city — Sumeria — and its living inhabitants!

The rulers of the underground world are of a strange "albino" variety — white of skin, pink of eye. The great make-up artist Bud Westmore devised the chalk-like covering for the actors who portrayed these weird albinos.

Westmore also devised the entire mask & claw make-ups for the Mole Men, the half-human slaves of the ruling Sumerians. These monstrosities were called "about the most grotesque individuals ever seen on a screen" up to that time.

lives in peril

Captured by the long lost Sumerians, the trio of explorers are brought before their king, Sharu, and their high priest, Elinu (Alan Napier).

They are horrified to hear a death sentence pronounced on them!

Refusing to accept their fate without a fight, they attempt an escape.

The guards pursue them.

But, because of their life underground they are unused to light, and so, when Bentley turns his flashlight on the Sumerians, the grub-pale creatures scream in agony and abandon the pursuit.

The talons on that male man's mighty warty paw could crush the unconscious head of John Agar like an eggshell.

Pity the plight of the poor mole man as the earth threatens to swallow him up. Or down!

worse things waiting

While fleeing from the sinister Sumerians, the scientists stumble into still another cavern — the dwelling place of the Mole Men. If anything, these pathetic creatures, the slaves of the Sumerians, are even more frightening & repellent than the pallid albinos.

The Mole Men kill Prof. Lafarge (Nestor Paiva).

Again the blinding rays of the flashlight save them. If the batteries go dead — they'll be dead!

the chamber of death

As the plot progresses, the remaining scientists, Dr. Bentley & Dr. Bellamin (Hugh Beaumont).

are captured once again by the albino-people. This time they are sentenced to death in the terrible "chamber of light".

Light holds terror for the underground people, of course, but they do not realize it is a natural element to the Men From Above, and so instead of being killed by the beams of light, Bentley & Bellamin follow it to its source.

The shaft leads them once more to the outside world!

After a long climb, they find themselves at the top of a mountain. They are about to note the position so that they can return with a larger expedition — when a tremendous earthquake blots out the entranceway.

The world of the Sumerians & Mole People has been lost again . . . perhaps forever.

The beautiful Underground Girl named Adod looks like she's bound to be A Dead girl and really underground.

An artistic application of black, white and gray greasepaint to the face of Robert Wilke gave him a very diabolic look in 1946 when he played THE CATMAN OF PARIS. Note how make-up artist Mark achieved the devilish effect by emphasizing the circles under the actor's eyes, the wrinkles at the bridge of his nose; curving his eyebrows upwards at 45° angles. Putty was molded onto tips of ears, giving them pointed, Satanic look. Of course, week's growth of black beard helped the sinister appearance!

Jack Pierce, right, aged Boris Karloff 3000 years in 6 hours for his classic role as Im-ho-tep in THE MUMMY (1932). "A person changes from youth to age first in the eyes," Pierce has explained, "then in the mouth, then the drooping of the muscles of the face. The eyes of a very old person are smaller than those of a younger one. I make up the eyes so that they give that effect. The mouth of an old person breaks into a thin line and sinks in under the nose. I get this expression with careful shading and sometimes add a mouthpiece inside the actor's mouth to distort his speech so that it sounds reedy and thin as that of a person ancient of days. It is comparatively easy to make up a face so that it is beautiful and attractive—it is not so easy to create furrows and lines so that they seem to belong on a face that is completely devoid of lines or ageing expressions." Nevertheless, as all the world knows, the incredible Mr. Pierce accomplished miracles in THE MUMMY, and here he is shown in the process of wrinkling Karloff's arms so that they resemble parchment.

The world's first 100-year-old Beetle? Na, white-haired monster being given a hair comb by its creator, Bill Tuttle, is one of the people-eating Marlocks from THE TIME MACHINE. Fortunately, they won't be around and eating people till the year 802,701 so you're safe for awhile yet—unless Mr. Tuttle lets his monster loose in your neighborhood at Halloween.

Gluing on the Hunchback of Notre Dame mask for "Face in the Mirror" episode of terrorvision program 'Woy Out. The false face was the end product of 120 hours of work on the part of make-up master Dick Smith, whose masterful mask, made of skin-thin lotex, looked like a victim of leprosy, with thick lips, distorted cheekbones and jawbone, flattened nose and a bulging dead eye.

TEST YOUR "EYE" Q

Here is a Memory Quiz that should knock your eyes out — so when you start puzzling your brains (both of them) over the answers, just make sure you don't make "blind" guesses and wind up like THE CYCLOPS (pictured above). If you can remember every quotation without botting on eye, then you've outwitted the author, G. John Edwards.

1. "To die — to be really dead . . . That must be glorious! There are far worse things awaiting man than death."
2. "Anck-es-on-Amon, my love has lasted longer than the temples of the Gods."
3. "No human heart could possibly function like that! He's . . . completely superhuman!"
4. "The lightning — it was good for you! Your father was Frankenstein, and your mother was the lightning! She has come down to you!"
5. "I can't destroy Frankenstein's creation — I must see it at its full power!"
6. "You know what I am going to do to you now? Did you ever see an animal being skinned? I'm going to tear the skin from you . . . bit by bit!"

7. "The wolf must have attacked her, and Larry came to the rescue."
8. "The bodies we use in our dissection for lecture purposes were not perfect enough for him, he said. He wanted us to supply him with other bodies, and we were not to be too particular as to where and how we got them."
9. "So . . . you're just dying to see who I really am! Fools! You brought it on yourselves!"
10. "Strangulation. Traces of foreign matter on his throat . . . It's mold!"

ANSWERS

1. Boris Karloff as Helen Chandler in DRACULA.
2. Boris Karloff as Zerkow in THE MUMMY.
3. Basil Rathbone as Bela Lugosi in THE SON OF FRANKENSTEIN.
4. Bela Lugosi as Bela Lugosi in THE SON OF FRANKENSTEIN.
5. Boris Karloff as Frankenstein in THE SON OF FRANKENSTEIN.
6. Boris Karloff as Frankenstein in THE SON OF FRANKENSTEIN.
7. Ralph Bellamy in THE WOLF MAN.
8. Edward Van Sloan as Dr. David H. Frankenstein in THE WOLF MAN.
9. Edward Van Sloan as Dr. David H. Frankenstein in THE WOLF MAN.
10. Boris Karloff as Robert Lowery in THE MUMMY'S GHOST.

Who's the Monster? His Famous Father played in a picture called . . . THE MONSTER. The beard? It belongs to an actor whose real last name was Blasko; a king of the Undead, who died.

ABBOTT & COSTELLO MEET DR. JEKYLL & MR. HYDE

FRANKENSTEIN MEETS THE WOLFMAN

BORIS KARLOFF in THE MUMMY

A scientist invents a drug that turns humans into monsters—and Costello gets a dose of the needle! He turns into a monster and lures Scotland Yard on a zany chase after the real madmen! Only $5.75 for 8mm; $10.75 for 16mm.

Here's your cup of tea . . . an eerie, spine-tingling, nerve-chilling story of your two favorite all-time great Monsters. Frankenstein and Wolfman will fill your cup with terror and send you to bed to dream of happy nightmares.

In 1932 Hollywood wrapped Boris Karloff in 15 yards of rotting gauze; for 6 hours they sprayed his face with chemicals & baked it with clay. The result: THE MUMMY—a screen horror classic! Only $5.75 for 8mm; $10.75 for 16mm.

THE CREATURE FROM THE LAGOON

THE BRIDE OF FRANKENSTEIN

BELA LUGOSI AS "DRACULA"

In the Amazon jungle a living creature from 150 million years ago threatens a party of archeologists. See the furious spear-gun battle to capture it in the Blink Lagoon.

Boris Karloff as The Frankenstein Monster and Elsa Lanchester as his Bride-To-Be. The Frankenstein monster was bad enough, but the Bride now appears as a 7-foot tall horror, wrapped in gauze, ragged stitches scarring her neck!

Slinking relentlessly through the thick London fog in pursuit of his fair victim is the most heinous and feared vampire of all time. Close your windows and hang out the garlic leaves—Count Dracula is on the loose! An all-time classic! Only $5.75 for 8mm; $10.75 for 16mm.

MOVIE MONSTER MODELS

GODZILLA

Monster from a million years ago. Now you can build a perfect replica of this Ancient Terror- Monster. His massive feet smash cities, his fantastic powers are always ready to strike with the force of a hurricane.

PHANTOM OF THE OPERA

The mask is off. The mind is now completely gone... mad. Frantic eyes peer out from a face etched in horror. Here is all the detail of the Ghost of the Paris Opera. Dressed with cape, black tie and tails, with his companions the sewer rat and lizard, his mask held high. And below, the dungeon window thru which an eerie face watches the outside world...and screams for revenge.

THE MUMMY—You'll be delighted at the musty smell of old Egyptian tombs. The real life death-like look with fascinate you as you put the Mummy together. III CAEDUL how you place the sacred stones that contain the magic signs—or there can be trouble. The snake—but you know all about that... don't you?

WOLF MAN—In all his gory splendor, arms upreared, ready to clutch his next victim. Complete in every detail, this kit when you assemble it... before you run out of the room. A detailed scale model of "WOLF MAN" surrounded by his favorite play-mates.

THE CREATURE FROM THE LAGOON—We dare you to put this one together. Horrifying, straight from the water. Assemble with caution so that you don't stab yourself on the razor sharp claws. Watch the head as you attach it... sharp teeth.

KING KONG

The first and greatest of them all. Terror of the Ancient World. Marvel of the Ages. All can be recognized when you build this perfect model with all the many details that almost bring King Kong back to life.

THE HUNCHBACK OF NOTRE DAME. As you start to build this greatest of all Monster characters, you will see not only the physical ugliness, but the beautiful soul that made Ian Cheney's performance a great classic. QUASSI-MOOO, the HORRIBLE, is on the block in the city square. A vicious rope hangs around his neck. His hands are in chains, his throat is parched with thirst. He looks up in ghastly fear at his tormentors.

FRANKENSTEIN—This great model is made up of 25 separate parts. When complete it stands over 12". You paint it yourself with quick drying enamel, and when finished the menacing figure of the great monster appears to walk right off the GRAVESTONE base that is part of the kit.

DRACULA—The count of midnight, hands stretched out in his famous "Terror Stance," looks at you with chilling eyes and grasping hands. Fang-like teeth hang for the taste of blood. In a twisted tree hang two of his favorite bat pets.

MOST FRIGHTENING HORROR MOVIE SCENE EVER MADE!

THE ORIGINAL PHANTOM OF THE OPERA
LON CHANEY

The original Lon Chaney's performance in the movie PHANTOM OF THE OPERA is ranked as one of the best scenes of the silent films. Now—for the first time anywhere—you can show in your own home the famous 100 feet of film depicting the thrilling "Unmasking Scene" that takes place when Mary Philbin rips the mask from the Phantom's face in the underground dungeon beneath the opera house! Exposed for the first time in the hideous, grotesque face of the Phantom—played by Lon Chaney, wearing the masterpiece of makeup he created (just for this picture).

THIS PLANT ACTUALLY EATS INSECTS AND BITS OF MEAT!

VENUS FLY TRAP

$1.00 THE WORLD'S MOST UNUSUAL HOUSE PLANT!

Unwary insect touches sensitive hairs, causing trap to shut. Plant then dissolves & digests insect. Trap will bite or flap will NOT bite off more than it can chew—such as a finger or a pencil. In a few days, after eating an insect, it will reopen for more food.

A BEAUTIFUL PLANT! The VENUS FLY TRAP is unusually beautiful! It bears lovely white flowers on 12" stems. Its dark green leaves are tipped with lovely pink traps—colorful and unusual!

EATS FLIES AND INSECTS! Each pink trap contains a bit of nectar. It is this color and sweetness which attracts the unsuspecting insect. Once he enters the trap, it snaps shut. Digestive juices then dissolve him. When the insect has been completely absorbed the trap reopens and prettily awaits another insect!

FEED IT RAW BEEF! If there are no insects in your house, you can feed the traps tiny slivers of raw beef! The plant will thrive on such food. When there is no food for the traps the plant will feed normally through its root system.

EASY TO GROW! The VENUS FLY TRAP bulbs grow especially well in the home. They thrive in glass containers and will develop traps in 3 to 4 weeks. Each order includes 3 FLY TRAPS plus SPECIAL GROWING MATERIAL packed in a plastic bag. Only $1.00.

ADMIRER BY CHARLES DARWIN,
FAMOUS BOTANIST AND EXPLORER

In 1875 Professor Sir Charles Darwin wrote, "This plant, commonly called 'Venus Fly Trap,' from the rapidity and force of its movements, is one of the most wonderful in the world. It is surprising how a slightly damp bit of meat will produce these effects. It seems hardly possible, and yet it is certainly a fact."
